TONING DOWN CENSURE OF SENATOR BINGHAM

RESOLUTION OF SENATOR NORRIS MAY BE ADOPTED

SOME WANT WORD "CONDEMN" IN RESOLUTION CHANGED TO "DISAPPROVE"

BINGHAM'S TARIFF ACTIVITIES TO BE ACTED ON PROBABLY MONDAY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 2.—Senate republican colleagues of Sen. Hiram Bingham, republican, Connecticut, have generally decided to support the Norris resolution censuring the senator's tariff activities if the word "condemn" in the resolution is changed to "disapprove."

An amendment proposing to soften thus the tone of the censure probably will be offered Monday by Senator Simeon D. Fess, republican, Ohio, and then the resolution probably will be passed by an overwhelming majority, according to present plans.

Many senators on both sides of the chamber, including Bingham's strong opponents on the democratic side, consider their job extremely distasteful. They privately say they do not like to spank each other in public and they would like to avoid the issue if some way out could be found.

In the whole history of congress senators and representatives have censured each other sparingly and in rare cases. Only three precedents have been brought to light since the Bingham case was thrust into the foreground.

The last was 27 years ago when two senators got into a fist fight on the floor. In 1842 the house censured a member for the introduction of a resolution which the leaders considered treasonous.

The first was prior to 1842 when a Virginia senator made public a secret treaty with a foreign power.

Only in the case of the house member did the resignation of the victim follow the action of the congress but the other two victims apologized. Friends of Bingham say he has no intention of either apologizing or resigning. The house member who resigned was elected for the seven succeeding terms, following his voluntary retirement.

Chairman Norris of the senate judiciary committee who introduced the resolution terming Bingham's actions as "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tending to bring the senate into dishonor and disrepute" has agreed he will withdraw the resolution any time Bingham will apologize for his charges that the senate lobby investigating committee was packed against him, and for his employment of Charles L. Eyanson of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association as his tariff adviser on the government payroll.

Bingham has taken the position there is nothing to apologize for, so a majority of the senators seem to believe there is nothing for them to do, to keep the record of the senate straight, but to adopt the Norris resolution. Its adoption would require no action on Bingham's part, but some of his opponents say they do not see how he could escape resigning.

Norris held up the resolution for several days at the request of Bingham's friends who were trying to make some arrangements to avoid the necessity for the resolution.

When Bingham definitely declined to apologize Norris offered the resolution which now is pending in hope that some way out of the difficulty may yet be found. Norris has consented that action on his resolution be delayed until Monday. There are several senators absent for the week-end who have notified Norris they would like to be present when the vote is taken, and this too, influenced the senator for further delay.

DEPRESSION IN MANY HOMES AFTER FAILURE

HUGE FOSHAY COMPANY GOES INTO HANDS OF RECEIVER FRIDAY

FINANCIERS AND BANKERS AT A LOSS TO ADVANCE REASONS FOR FAILURE

Minneapolis, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—An atmosphere of depression prevailed in thousands of homes in the west today following the failure of the W. B. Foshay Co., Minneapolis, which operated public utilities, investment companies, steamship lines, banks and real estate firms from Alaska to Central America.

The huge organization, headed by Wilbur B. Foshay, and with properties estimated at more than $20,000,000, went into the hands of the receiver Friday.

Financiers and bankers who were at a loss to advance reasons for the failure, said the collapse was perhaps the most serious ever suffered in this region.

Foshay, the directing genius of the widespread organization, who came here 15 years ago and whose name is blazoned in electric lights atop his recently completed 32-story office tower building here, may have told the cause of the collapse but he was silent.

"I have nothing to say at the present time," he declared. "We did all we could."

There were those, however, who believed that a contributory cause to the rapidly developed firm's failure was the lavish dedicatory celebration provided by Foshay when his tower "the Washington monument of the west" was thrown open to the public.

It has been reported that from $125,000 to $500,000 was spent in the monster celebration at which Secretary of War Good was a principal speaker and Sousa's Band gave a series of concerts.

There were those also who looked upon the imposing tower, supposedly financed largely by stock sales to working people, as an unwise investment considering the tremendous rental value of the land on which the slender tower was built.

Few believed the crash was in any way connected with the recent turn of events in Wall Street.

Among the first to feel the pinch of the crash were depositors of the Foshay State Bank of St. Paul, which closed at noon by order of the state. There had been a run on the institution during the morning and when the "closed" sign was put on the door at noon many of the 1,800 depositors who arrived too late stood on the sidewalks outside excitedly discussing the affair.

Of the two other banks controlled by the organization in the Twin Cities, one, the third Foshay State Bank of Minneapolis, will become affiliated with the First Bank Stock Corporation, while the Northwest Bancorporation considered taking over the other, the Foshay Trust & Savings Bank.

One of the first acts of Joseph Chapman, Minneapolis banker and merchant appointed receiver of the Foshay Companies by the federal court, was the dismissal of many of the 400 employees who worked in the headquarters offices here.

A complete investigation of the firm's involved affairs was then begun by Chapman, who shortly afterwards was called to Arizona by personal affairs. The investigation, however, will be continued.

No criminal action was contemplated against Foshay and his associates, at least pending an official statement on the institution's financial condition.

MANITOBA DIGS SELF OUT OF FIRST SNOW STORM OF YEAR

Winnipeg, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Manitoba today dug its way out of the first snow storm of the year, a storm which seriously crippled traffic and caused extensive damage to communication lines.

REPORT DISSENSION IN ROUMANIAN ROYAL FAMILY

Berlin, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—A report received here today from authoritative sources in Bucharest said that Dowager Queen Marie of Roumania had fled from the royal palace at Balchik because of dissension in the royal family.

Rumors of strife between the dowager queen and others of the family have been current for some time. It was declared that several of the family were opposed to her inclination to interfere with the regency which presides over Roumania on behalf of her grandson, the king, Michael I.

Only yesterday Princess Ileana, 20-year-old daughter of the dowager queen, setting out in her yacht, the Istrava, to visit her mother at Balchik narrowly escaped disaster when the yacht struck a reef near Agriaga. The yacht was pulled off by a gun boat and towed back to Constanza, its starting point.

STOCK EXCHANGE ACTIVE TODAY

NO TRADING DUE TO TWO DAYS' HOLIDAYS DECLARED BY EXCHANGE

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, Nov. 2.—The stock exchange was active today although there was no trading due to the two days' holiday declared when the traders had gone through the biggest week in history.

More than 600 traders were on the floor this morning. The buzz of conversation was equal to that of any ordinary trading day.

Tickers were running out—not prices but general announcements of a technical nature.

The stock exchange was attempting to straighten out from those tremendous days of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday when trading was at its greatest pace. The 600 specialists or clerks were busy checking over their lists as they were yesterday and as they will be tomorrow.

An announcement came over the tickers saying specialists or one of their authorized representatives must be on the floor between 10 A. M. and 1 P. M. Sunday to aid in clearing up the books in preparation for what probably will be another great market Monday. Previously it was announced the specialists or their clerks must be in their offices tomorrow.

Martin said that September and October sales were well ahead of the same months of 1928, the previous record year, and that indications are the company will continue to make new records.

NEW YORK GIRL IS HELD IN JAIL AS A WITNESS

GLORIA ROUZER NOW LOOKS TO HER MOTHER FOR AID AND COMFORT

SURE SHE AND HER ATTORNEY WILL GET HER OUT OF "MESS"

By HARRY J. HALLOWAY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New Orleans, La., Nov. 2.—Gloria Rouzer, pretty and sophisticated young New York girl who was held in Plaquemines Parish jail as a material witness in the mystery death of Jack Kraft, today looked to her mother, Mrs. Gloria Rouzer of New York for aid and comfort.

"I understand mother is not very well, and I hate for her to make this long trip but I'm sure she and Miss Brooks (the New York attorney hired by the mother) will be able to help me get out of this mess."

While Gloria waited for her mother and an attorney, a dozen special investigators were trying to patch up the bits of information they had been able to glean in the mysterious death of young Kraft.

Five men, all members of the crew of the liner Creole from which Kraft disappeared three weeks ago yesterday were held today as material witnesses.

John McGouldrick, first mate of the Creole, and the man Gloria said had promised to marry her, was held incommunicado under a grand jury indictment charging him with the murder upon information furnished by the girl.

Jack Kraft—the young New York pressman who wanted to be a writer—loved lone orde, as he knew her. He loved her so much that he was driven into a nervous frenzy and choked the girl a few minutes before his death because of her attentions to McGouldrick and Sammy Enstein, ship's steward, who remained loyal to the dark-haired Gloria—that is one version of what happened on shipboard.

Benedict Deeley, lookout man on the vessel, who was held yesterday as a witness, contradicted the story of Enstein and Miss Rouzer, and said that it was the steward and not Kraft who held the girl when she shrieked a few minutes before Kraft was supposed to have jumped overboard.

It had previously been told by the girl that Kraft slapped her because she was jealous and that when she screamed at the abuse McGouldrick went to her assistance. McGouldrick said Miss Rouzer told him she had a fight with Kraft.

No definite evidence explaining how Kraft sustained the bullet hole thru his heart has been revealed.

SAYS HE ERRED PUTTING HIMSELF UNDER OBLIGATION

TRYING TO HIDE OBLIGATION BY UNTRUTH, REFERRING TO MONEY FROM DOHENY

REFERS TO STATEMENT THAT McLEAN HAD LOANED IT TO HIM

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 2.—Former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall, after making public for the first time his story of the $100,000 loan he received from E. L. Doheny, prepared today to leave with his family for the southwest to regain strength to fight the one-year jail sentence and $100,000 fine imposed on him by Justice William Hitz.

Fall said he erred in putting himself under obligation, and in trying to hide the obligation by an untruth, referring to the money he received from Doheny and his statement to the senate oil committee that E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, had loaned it to him.

"If I alone had suffered the consequences of my act I could depart in peace," he said. "In the meantime, I ask the American people to judge me by the acts I confess, and not to believe me guilty of the damnable crime of which I am innocent."

Fall's appeal will be perfected in the next 19 days, after which his lawyers will have three months to prepare and file the transcript with the District of Columbia court of appeals. Thereafter, briefs will be filed and the case will be ready for argument probably in April or May. Fall will not be required to return from New Mexico for these proceedings.

Fall's detailed story of the loan and the awarding of the oil reserve leases to Doheny's companies was prompted by a desire to "vindicate the faith of those who have loved, honored or trusted me," he said.

His untruth as to the source of the $100,000 loan which he made to buy New Mexico ranch properties was prompted by a fear that it would be used against the republican administration, he said. "I knew perfectly well at that time that the democratic leaders were preparing to wage war on the republican administration by making charges of general dishonesty," the statement said.

"My friend Harding was dead. The new administration would not want to be burdened with my defense. . . . I knew the power of the public press, and how it could be used under such circumstances from the floor of the senate."

"I knew that under these conditions my reputation would be defamed, and that I would be unable to adequately meet in the public press the charges against me."

"To avoid this calamity I made the unspeakable blunder of attempting to evade the matter by an untruth. I wrote the committee I had obtained the money from McLean. I thus made a very bad matter very, very much worse."

The committee immediately ascertained that this was not true. I then requested my friend Doheny to go before the committee and state the whole truth. I was too ill physically and mentally to do so."

Fall also said he had been twice put in jeopardy for the same offense, through his previous trial and acquittal on another charge, and that Justice Hitz "whether he intended it or not, in many ways conveyed to the jury his belief that I should be convicted."

"It seems that one strong man on the jury was able in the secrecy of the jury room to turn the jury against me with arguments that were unjust and unfair," Fall said.

JUDGE HAMILTON TAKES THE STAND AT WEATHERFORD

TEXAN PICTURES HIMSELF AS FATHER THREATENED BY DEATH

PROSECUTOR SAYS WALTON WAS SUITOR OPPOSED BY FATHER OF GIRL HE LOVED

Weatherford, Texas, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Why the blessing he claims to have promised Tom Walton Jr., if he should marry Theresa Hamilton was spoken with a blazing gun was told in measured words today by Judge R. H. Hamilton in his trial on a charge of murdering his son-in-law.

With judicial care, the former college professor and member of the supreme court of appeals commission of Texas told his story of the shooting in his Amarillo law office last May 4. He pictured himself as a father threatened by death at the hands of the 21-year-old youth who had "hired gunmen to trail me."

Sorority sisters of Theresa Hamilton, rallying to the aid of the 18-year-old widow who had gone to school with them at Texas University, had described young Walton in much the same way, testifying he had threatened Judge Hamilton by saying "a rattlesnake is a gentleman and rattles before it strikes. I won't rattle."

It was a view of Tom Walton's character diametrically opposed to that presented by the state. Prosecuting attorneys described him as a suitor opposed by the father of the girl he loved and a son-in-law shot down from the back when he went unarmed to the law office of Judge Hamilton to tell him of his secret marriage to Theresa three months before.

"I told the boy that if he and my little girl ever were married, I would bestow my blessings on them," Judge Hamilton said when he testified for the first time late yesterday.

He declared Walton refused to listen to advice that it would be better to delay marriage until the youth was through school and Theresa was older. It was indicated Theresa's age had been given as 18 in the marriage license, whereas she was 17 then.

Judge Hamilton read a letter he said had been written by Tom's wife in which she told of threats against his life made by Tom Walton after the marriage.

"I wish you were here, I think he is very dangerous," the judge read. "What I don't like is his statement that he is going to pull the wool over your eyes, and that he might use a hammer if necessary."

College friends sat with Theresa in the courtroom yesterday, taking the stand one by one to tell nervously what they had assertedly heard Tom Walton say when he came to see Theresa at the sorority house.

Their sport frocks contrasted with the modest garb of Mrs. Grace Walton, mother of Tom, who sat rigid while the testimony concerning "her boy" was given. She had wept previously when Tom had been described as a dutiful son and a youth of excellent character.

Jeanette Carter, one of the co-eds, was asked whether she had ever heard Tom Walton threaten Judge Hamilton.

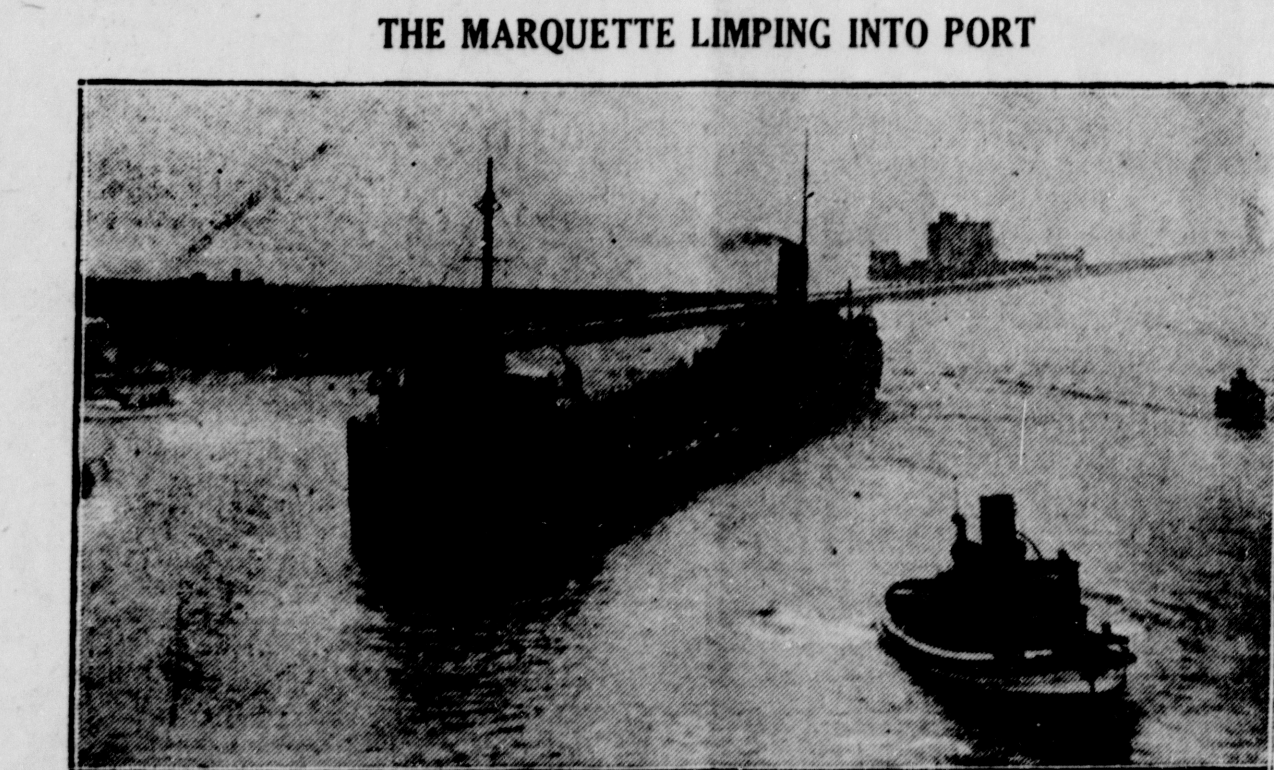

"Tom said that if any of the Hamilton family tried to come between him and Theresa he had a means of getting them out of the way," the girl answered. "He said if we didn't believe it we could write to an address in Chicago and ask about the Oklahoma Kid."

The witness said Tom was angry and drunk at the time.

Christine Campbell testified young Walton boasted of having "two gunmen on Judge Hamilton's trail."

THAT PLEASANT MAN

(By Mrs. Elvin Young)

Are you the same when away from home
As when at home my man?
Do you wear that frown, with a grouch on
As when at home my man?
Do you pass a neighbor, or a friend,
While your head is hanging low?
Do you live the life to the outside world
You do my man at home?

The outside world sees all we do,
And watches every move.
So if you wear that frown, or grouch—
Or hang your head quite low—
If they pass you by, without a smile,
Then no one's to blame but you.

So, do you live the life to the outside world
That you do my man at home?

No, it's a frown, and grouch,
For the family at home, my man,
One you should love and cherish,
And protect unto the end.
It's the outside world gets the pleasant smile,
You should have smiled at home,
And the dear ones wait to receive it,
But a frown and grouch is on.

Still the outside world thinks he's a wonderful man
Always pleasant and smiling too,
Could they into his home step on the sly—
Or if they a mouse could be—
Would see him very differently—
For in place of that smile, it's a frown.
Yes, in place of the smile they had Seen outside, a frown and grouch is on.

His wife takes it all quite patiently,
Although I'm bound to say,
A light flashed on a reflector,
Will fly back and hit they say,
But instead, she keeps on singing,
Trying to drown her cares,
Speaks kindly to her husband,
To her household duties care,
She'll ask him a civil question,
In a good and kindly way he may answer,
Or he may not.
But, he's that pleasant.

When Coalition Leaders Differ

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE wants the Senate to investigate the recent crash in the stock market. In seven "whereases" and one "resolved," the North Dakotan makes clear his belief that speculation is to blame for the violent fluctuations, that speculation has siphoned the Country's money out of its normal and necessary channels into the stock market, that speculation threatens the stability of the Country's economic structure, and that therefore Congress must regulate speculation.

So far, so good. But Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the Coalition of which Senator Nye is a dependable member, has already explained the crash in stocks. He says it is all the fault of the Republican Party in general, and of Messrs. Coolidge, Hoover and Mellon in particular. These "prophets and high priests of American prosperity," he tells us, have been too optimistic! They stimulated speculation, and then did nothing to prevent the collapse due to its orgy! They egged the speculators on, and then failed to go to their rescue!

If Robinson is right, it seems superfluous to add another to the long and lengthening list of partisan Senate investigations. If Robinson is right, impeachment would be none too mild a punishment for Messrs. Hoover and Mellon, while a resolution of censure would be about the most that could be done about Mr. Coolidge.

But does Mr. Robinson mean to imply that American prosperity is non-existent? Or that, while we have it, no one has any business to talk about it? What, in short, is the crime for which he now hastens to indict the Republican leaders—talking about imaginary prosperity, or luring investors into trying to cash in on a real prosperity? He would find either horn of the dilemma uncomfortable.

Mr. Nye's diagnosis is sounder. Everyone knows there has been too much speculation, that values have been too much inflated, that a reaction was bound sooner or later to set in, and that the longer such reaction was delayed while prices were pushed higher, the more severe it would be.

But if Mr. Nye can devise any practical scheme by which men can be prevented from speculating with their own money, or with money they can borrow, he will do something that no lawmaker has ever yet succeeded in doing.

A free market for securities, as for wheat or cotton or any other commodity, is an economic necessity, even if it does run wild sometimes and bring financial disaster to speculators.

Meanwhile, American prosperity is a fact that has been utterly unchanged by the happenings in Wall Street. It rests upon solid foundations. Industry and agriculture and commerce continue to function, continue to turn out their products, continue to yield their due profits, regardless of how the prices of stocks may run up and down the dollar gamut.—Minneapolis Journal.

Unightly Billboards

A STORM of public opinion now brewing may sweep the unsightly billboards or advertising signs from the roadside of main thoroughfares in this country, says the Bemidji Sentinel. Up to this time they have been multiplying in numbers, but there are indications that the public is soon to register a protest that will go far to abolish these eye-sores and vision breakers.

The roadside signboard has a certain advertising value and the public neither envies the advertiser for his profit from it nor does it desire to deprive the advertiser of any business advantage, but the highways are primarily for the benefit and pleasure of the people and the advertising sign detracts from these benefits and pleasures.

Motorists find the poster-board obnoxious for the three reasons that it mars the landscape, obstructs the view of the scenery and creates a traffic hazard by interference with the vision of the driver. All are sufficiently valid reasons why the advertising sign should be prohibited along main highways.

In the early days of the automobile the roadside poster-board was limited to circus posters on barn broadsides and motorists never dreamed of them as a future problem of highway administration. Public opinion then could not have been molded against the signboard. Today it is molding itself and may strike any time.

When the advertiser finds that his signboards are distasteful to the public he will not wait, if he is wise, until the passage of legislation before he removes them.

Graft On the Air

THE Better Business Bureau is to investigate and fight "get-rich-quick" schemes promulgated by means of the radio, says the Hennepin County Review.

The absence of laws prohibiting the broadcasting of matter that would be barred by post office authorities if sent through the mails, and the wide range of audience, makes the radio a perfect mode of expression for the dishonest promoter.

The management of broadcasting stations has the power to curb fraud of this sort, and the better class stations are cooperating to guard against misuse of their facilities. However, it is probable that the stock grafter will always be able to hire a station to broadcast his message to prospective "suckers."

The mails, the telegraph and the telephone have all played a part in the selling wiles of the promoter. It is but logical that the radio should come next. And the public is almost entirely without protection.

A solution is in the hands of the stock-purchasing public. Before buying any stock one should make it a point to discuss its merits with a responsible broker or banker. If everyone followed this plan, the day of the dishonest stock salesman, whether he operated over the radio or through the mails, would be over.

"Doc" Spears

You hear no criticisms of "Doc" Spears these days. As a coach he has been a wonder. He has used raw and old material and fashioned a smooth-working football machine that seems destined to win the highest honors.

Under his tutelage Pharmed was developed, a man about to sit among the mighty in the All-American group. In spite of shifts caused by injuries or study ineligibility, "Doc" has kept his even temper, philosophically accepted conditions and made the best of things.

When a fan, visiting outstate, talks of Minnesota these days he gets a respectful hearing. Spears, as a football mentor, bulks large in many ways.

Militant Churchman Dies

Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, who died at a private sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y., had been ailing for some time, but his death, which was said to have been caused by a heart attack, was unexpected.

Too Dangerous

Betty and Bobbie were operating the radio. Suddenly from Betty came a scream of delight. "Listen!" she cried, "I have San Francisco, and that's where mother said daddy would be today." Bobbie paled a little, but he stood his ground. "Turn that dial," he commanded firmly. "What's the matter with you? Don't you know I broke a window pane today?"

Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis, Nov. 2.—Minnesota trampled Indiana in the dust of defeat today, and the first quarter bore out the prophecy that the Gophers are of real championship quality.

Minnesota scored, 13 to 0, against Indiana in the first quarter.

The Gophers' second touchdown came after Minnesota got the ball on its own 48-yard line where Faunce kicked out of bounds. With Brockmeyer skirting the ends and Pharmer and Nagurski hitting the line for repeated gains of from three to eight yards at a crack, the Gophers put the pigskin on the Hoosiers' 11-yard line. Pharmer made seven yards in two tries and Brockmeyer two to put the ball on the two-yard line, from where he went over for the second score of the game.

In the second period Ross flipped a pass to Brubaker who took the heavy standing on Minnesota's goal line without a Gopher near him. Garrison kicked the extra point. Play saw-sawed back and forth with neither team able to put the ball within scoring distance. Pharmer got loose for runs of 35 yards and 21 yards but the oval was about in midfield as the half ended: Minnesota, 13; Indiana, 7.

A Minnesota march down the field was halted on Indiana's 42-yard line where Mankowski intercepted a pass. The Hoosiers were unable to gain and kicked to Minnesota's 20-yard line from where the Gophers resumed their interrupted assault. Pharmer's 21-yard run around right end was made possible by excellent interference. His 35-yard jaunt came on Indiana's kick-off after the touchdown the Gopher back zig-zagging through a broken field from his 10-yard line to his own 45-yard streak.

Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Under ideal weather conditions Indiana met Minnesota here today before 30,000 persons. Minnesota one of the two undefeated or untied teams in the Big Ten needed a victory to remain an outstanding championship contender.

Minneapolis, Nov. 2.—With the efficiency of three first string backs and one of the best ends in the western conference reduced by injured, Minnesota met Indiana here today in what may be one of the decisive games of the present season.

Brockmeyer, Reibeth and Barnhart, halfbacks, all were suffering from painful leg injuries and Tanner, the great Gopher end, nursed several battered ribs which were serious enough to keep him entirely out of the contest.

Of the three crippled backs, Brockmeyer alone was expected to start the game with Timm, Pharmer and big Bronko Nagurski as his running mates.

Tanner's post was expected to be filled by Hoeffler, an able understudy who hardly could be called upon, however, to play 60 strenuous minutes of football.

With the exception of the change at end Dr. Clarence Spears planned to start the same line-up that gave Minnesota its imposing victory a fortnight ago over Northwestern and made the Gophers one of the outstanding contenders for Big Ten championship honors.

Indiana came to Memorial Field with a dangerous passing attack, the effectiveness of which may be somewhat impaired by wet underfooting.

Minnesota was rated a notch higher in scoring power than the invaders and Dr. Spears hoped to keep several of his best plays in "the bag" out of sight of scouts covering the game for the remaining Big Ten opponents the Gophers must meet later in the season.

A crowd of 30,000 was expected to watch the game.

The line-ups:
Indiana—Catterton, le; Hasper, lt; Waraska, lg; Mankowski, c; Bennett, rg; Unger, rt; Hansen, re; Brubaker, qb; Faunce, lhb; Todd, rlb; Hughes, fb.

Minnesota—Anderson, le; Munn, lt; Kakela, lg; Oja, c; Teeter, rg; Langenberger, rt; Hoeffler, re; Timm, qb; Brockmeyer, lhb; Pharmer, rlb; Nagurski, fb.

Gold in Philippines

Gold has been found since the advent of Europeans in deposits of varying size in many corners of the Philippines; and before the Spaniards under Magellan visited the islands, the natives mined the metal. Gold bracelets and chains worn by the natives whetted the discoverers' interest in the islands, and after Spanish settlements were made, gold was regularly exported to Spain.

10-ROUND BOUT IS SET AT PADDY HARMON'S CHICAGO STADIUM

MANDELL CONFIDENT HE CAN DEFEAT THE VANCOUVER FIGHTER

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(UP)—The greatest left hand in the prize ring will be pitted against a murderous right cross Monday night when Sammy Mandell and Jimmy McLarnin meet in a ten-round bout at Paddy Harmon's Chicago stadium.

Mandell, whose lightning left jabs have carried him to complete domination of the lightweight ranks, will be making his first serious threat of the welterweight division in meeting McLarnin. He has previously beaten the Vancouver fighter when both were lightweights and is confident he can repeat.

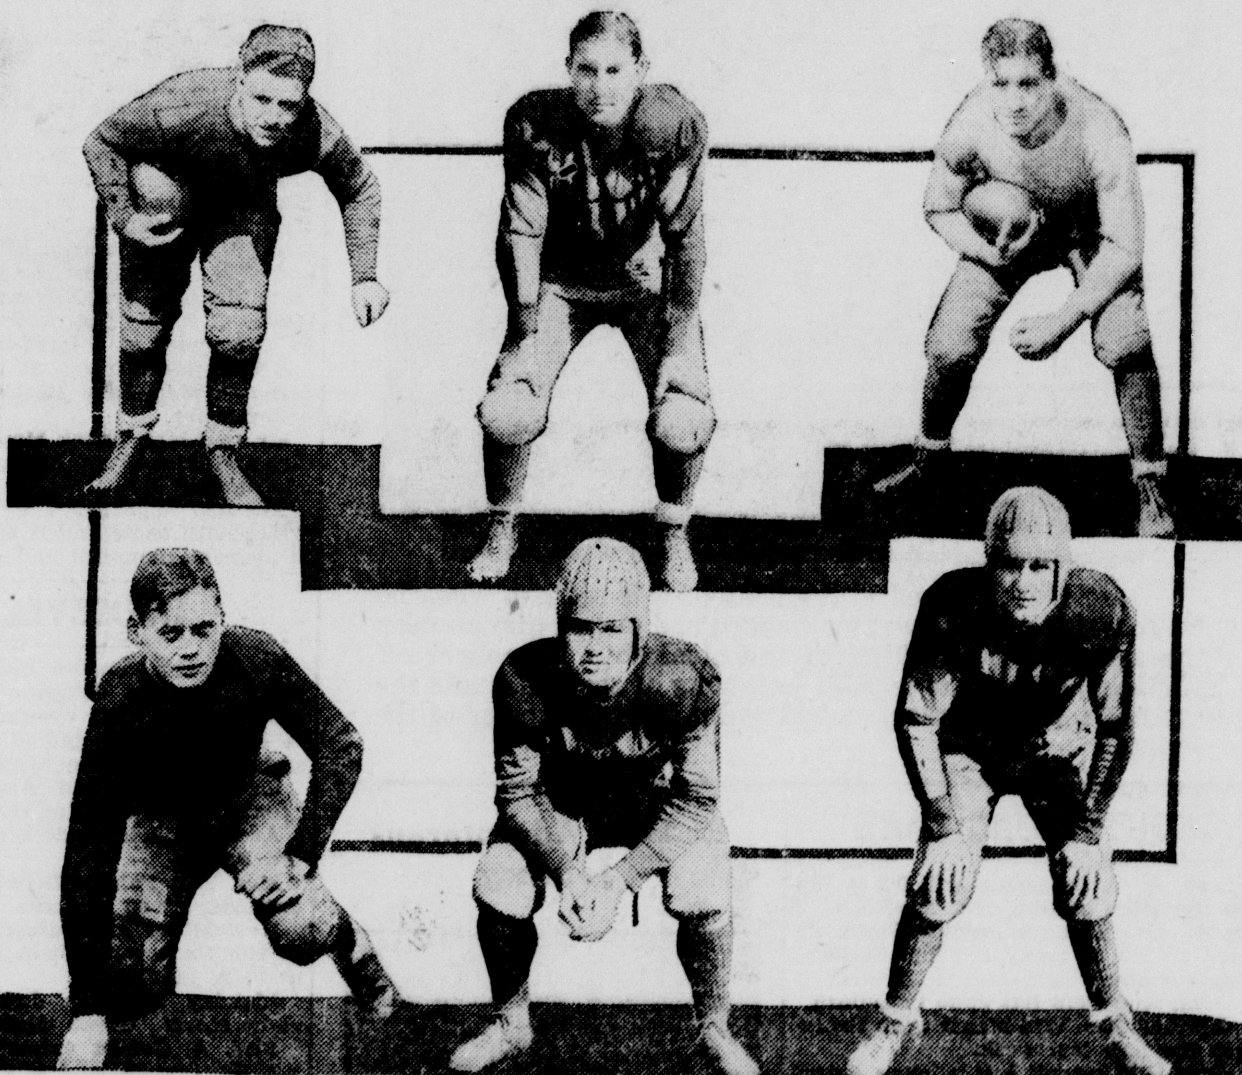

As for McLarnin, he seems to be in the best shape of his career and with his weight now in the neighborhood of 145 pounds believes he can avenge his previous defeat. Mandell will tip the beam at about 125 pounds.

Odds on the fight as the principals completed their hardest training yesterday were quoted at 6 to 5 on Mandell.

Otto Von Porat, the hard hitting heavyweight contender, takes on Charley Smith of England in the semi-windup.

Minnesota's "Thundering Herd" Big 10 Contenders

These six young men are among the 33 players Dr. Spears of Minnesota takes on his football trips, and are some of those on which he calls for regular performance. "Big" Munn, upper left, has been changed from a halfback to a tackle, now that Bronko Nagurski has gone back to fullback. The others are: Top row (center) Arthur Pharmer, halfback; Paul Kirk (right), halfback; below, Leroy Timm, blocking quarter; Quentin Burdick, fullback, Win Brockmeyer, halfback. Pharmer and Brockmeyer are Minnesota's high scoring players to date in conference competition.

Although Bronko Nagurski (top center) has been sent back to his old position at fullback, the group above is otherwise representative of Minnesota's fast developing line, which has been rounding into shape after a slow start and is now giving a splendid account of itself. Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin will try their fireworks against these boys during the remainder of the season. Left to right (above) Oja, center; Nagurski, fullback; Pulkrabek, guard; (below) Tanner, end; Kakela, guard; Anderson, end.

Everett STRUPPER

GEORGIA TECH'S ALL-AMERICA ACE OF A DECADE AGO—A LITTLE GIANT OF THE GRID. HE SCALED. BUT 140 LBS.

THOSE who weigh less than 150 pounds have to be remarkable players, indeed, in order to qualify for a first-class varsity football team. For in the grueling stress of games in which 180 and 190 pounders abound, real lightweights are under a tremendous handicap indeed. And yet through sheer speed, agility and a football sense equivalent to genius, some pygmies do manage to shine among the superstars every season since the game began.

Far back in the neolithic nineties when the gridiron game was in its true caveman age there was, of course, that 145 pounds of tackling TNT immortalized in football annals as Frank Hinkey of Yale. He bit into hostile tonnage on the hoof like a blast from a World War flame-thrower and he was as tough as the cleats on his battle brogans. Hinkey is still the historic apotheosis of all football's featherweights—his spirit roams the yard-lines wherever the little fellows of the game do battle with the giants!

The Sport Bug has sketched here three "H" fellers' whom the spectral Hinkey must have hovered over as a kindred spirit. There's Everett Struppper who blazed to fame as one of Georgia Tech's most brilliant backs a few seasons back. "Strup" was so small he had a tough time even getting a trial but (shades of Hinkey!) what a whizbang he was in open field dashes. Little Struppper was of All-American class all-round. A tiny yet terrible "Golden Tornado" in himself.

This season we are watching Frank Carideo careening toward grid immortality as the model quarterback on Notre Dame's 1929 "Four Horsemen"—sparkling spark plug for the smashing Mullins, the fleet Elder, and the bruising Brill; and a magnificent ball-toter himself. Carideo is light but he blends into Knute Rockne's scoring machine like high power electricity—a flashback and smashback combined.

New York University has the smallest of all varsity stars in "Hornet" Hormel—speedy, game, and durable, but so tiny that it is hard to shake him loose against fast-charging opponents. That is the tragedy of nearly all the grid dwarfs—they can be thrown back or upset too easily by heavy tacklers. Even such a rugged little whirlwind as Albie Booth of Yale sorely misses weight and size when trying to run through smart and husky opposition. Yes, it takes a whole of a player to make a modern varsity when he doesn't weigh well over 150 pounds.

JEFF HARRIS IS FOUND GUILTY

VETERAN SOUTHERN PEACE OFFICER WAS CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Chandler, Okla., Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—A jury in district court today found Jeff Harris, veteran peace officer, guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Sentence was left to the discretion of the court.

Harris was charged with the murder of Oscar Lowery in an independence day liquor raid in which Lowery and his brother-in-law, James Harris, were slain.

A. S. Wells, chief defense counsel, gave notice of appeal.

The maximum sentence is from 4 to 99 years in the penitentiary. Judge Johnson announced he would pass sentence Nov. 12.

Harris and only three or four spectators were in the court room when the jury returned at 8:30 A. M. after deliberating 17 hours. The 65-year-old defendant slumped in his chair and closed his eyes when the verdict was read by Foreman George Kimball. He had to be escorted from the room.

Jurors reported that at no time did they consider the death penalty as demanded by the state.

DAGGETT BROOK

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lutes were in Brainerd on Tuesday of this week.

Last Saturday afternoon someone started a fire that burned for several miles before it was brought under control. It evidently was started in the southern part of Daggett Brook and burned through several sections there and also burned down into Morrison county. It is estimated that at least 200 tons of hay were burned. Scores of men were needed to get the fire under control. At this writing we have not heard just how or where the fire started.

Russell Phillips was one of the people to suffer from the fire, having lost all of his hay. It certainly is a great loss at this time of the year.

PATSY RUTH MILLER - FORD STERLING in "THE FALL OF EVE"

A COLUMBIA PRODUCTION

A Modern Eve Has Many Temptations to Resist

In "The Fall of Eve," the Columbia film showing at the Lyceum Sunday only modern Eve holds forth in all her glory. A Modern Garden of Eden, modern Adams and Eves and present day "Apples" and "Snakes" all play important parts in the story. Where there was only one snake and one apple in the original Garden of Eden, there are hundreds of each in the world today. The first Eve had only one temptation to resist, the modern Eve has many.

The Garden of Eden was all that the world's first heroine had to lose. Being the only woman, she had neither friends nor rivals for her husband's affections. Since there was as yet no moral code, she had no reputation, good or bad, to lose; and as she slept in the open air and there was no such thing as money, she could lose neither her fortune nor the roof over her head.

When the Eve of 1929 listens to the lure of the serpent and two-times her boy friend, she risks the loss of her friends, home, man, reputation and money. The modern Eve in "The Fall of Eve" is up against this situation but is clever enough to come out of it all unscathed.

Different methods are used by fire eaters to keep the tongue and hands from burning. Some rub the skin of the parts to be affected with hard soap, the tongue included, and over that a layer of powdered sugar is placed. Others use a solution of alum, or liquid starch.

Unbreakable Glass

The general non-shatterable glass is of three distinct types. One of these is unusually thick; another consists of two or more layers of glass cemented together with an organic binder, such as celluloid, and the third is prepared by special heat treatment. The first of these can be identified by its relatively great thickness, the second by examining the edge of the glass for laminated structure, and the third by its irregular figures, seen when the glass is examined in polarized light.

Be'll-Ringing Clocks

Perhaps the earliest tower clock with bell-ringing mechanism was one made by Peter Lightfoot, a monk of Glanbury, England, about 1325. writes Satis N. Coleman in his book, "Bells." Connected with this clock were automatic figures which struck a bell on the hours. These performing figures pleased the public, and many of the town clocks of Europe were provided with such figures to ring the bells on the hours. They were used for proclaiming time long before the introduction of clock dials.—Detroit News.

AIM TO SPEED UP BALL GAMES MORE

National League Umpires Urging the Players On.

For several years the National league had figures to show that games in that circuit were played faster than contests in the American league, but it is doubtful if the complete statistics this season will show the older outfit to be snappier in the matter of doing their work and having it over with.

National league umpires do far more barking at players to get them to hasten through their exercises than do the American league officials, but there are certain things that tend to prolong National league games which are not tolerated in the American league.

A National league partisan might argue there is much more hitting in the parent circuit, and hitting, of course, slows up a game, writes Edward Burns in the Chicago Tribune. Taken by and large, however, it is not probable that this phase of the matter is greatly different in the two majors.

To one switching from the observation of a half season play in one league to regular attendance of games in the other league, the difference is apparent.

One factor alone that is said to make a difference of many minutes in a National and an American league game is the practice in the National league of throwing the ball around the infield after each putout and frequently after a new ball is put in the game. In the American league, this bit of horseplay is not tolerated. There are catchers who throw to the third baseman after a strikeout, but the third baseman tosses it to the pitcher and the game is resumed.

Another big difference is found in the practice of National league batters who seek to annoy the pitchers by jumping out of the batters' box repeatedly, ostensibly to rub dust on their bats. This is not tolerated in the American league. A batter is not allowed to step from the box except for legitimate reasons, such as to re-

TWO LITTLE GIRLS

MAKE GRUESOME FIND

National Park, N. J., Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Two little girls on their way to church today discovered the bones of a small boy in the under brush.

Fifty feet from where the girls found the skull a search party uncovered a bundle of small human bones wrapped in a weather stained sheet. Under Sheriff Jacob Tryon said the bones were treated with quicklime to aid decomposition.

The body was that of a boy between eight and ten years old, Tryon said.
